

Revised check-list of digger wasps (Hymenoptera: Sphecidae) from the collection of N. Nedelkov at the National Museum of Natural History in Sofia

Toshko LJUBOMIROV

Introduction

High school teacher Nikola Nedelkov from Sofia published some of the first scientific reports on the Bulgarian sphecid wasp fauna (NEDELKOV, 1909; NEDELKOV, 1914). Before that only Dimitar Joakimoff (JOAKIMOFF, 1899) had reported five sphecid species in the Rila Mountain. Nedelkov did not restrict his study to a single group of insect families or to a single order. He discussed almost all main insect orders in his publications. This made the results obtained by Nedelkov rather doubtful as far as large groups were concerned, because at that time they were quite insufficiently studied from faunistic and taxonomic points of view (for instance, many Diptera; Homoptera; Hymenoptera: Ichneumonoidea, Chalcidoidea, Proctotrupoidea). However, most of the West-Palaeartic sphecid wasp species were already relatively well-known and their classification was almost completed. In species determination and reference making, Nedelkov used one of the best works on Sphecidae in Europe at that time - the work of Andrea Dahlbom (DAHLBOM, 1843-1845). Therefore, the sphecid material was to a great extent correctly determined and reported despite some misidentifications and misreports in Nedelkov's well-preserved and labelled collection containing 364 digger wasp specimens. The goal of the present study is to correct these misidentifications, to give a full list of the sphecid species reported by Nedelkov including data collected by the same author but unpublished so far. At present the whole collection of Nedelkov is deposited in five boxes in the entomological collection of the National Museum of Natural History in Sofia. The new species for the Bulgarian fauna established are marked with an asterisk.

The sphecid material in the publication of N. Nedelkov from 1909

In 1909 the paper of Nedelkov "Our Entomological Fauna" was published in the Archive of the Ministry of Education (Arhiv na Ministerstvoto na narodnoto prosveshtenie). There Hymenoptera together with many other insect groups (mostly Orthoptera and Coleoptera) was included in a list of 73 species, 11 of which were sphecids, as well as one undetermined Cerceris species. The sphecid material was collected by the author in Svishtov, Varna, Stara Zagora, Rhodope Mountains, Assenovgrad, Sozopol and Bourgas. Nedelkov also revised two small collections in Chirpan made by N. Botusharov and P. Dimitrov.

The sphecid material in the publication of N. Nedelkov from 1914

In his "Seventh Contribution to the Entomological Fauna of Bulgaria" Nedelkov reported at least 98 sphecid species under 104 specific names. In this paper he included material published in 1909 as well. The publication appeared in 1914 and contained only data on Hymenoptera. The material was collected by N. Nedelkov (from the vicinities of Sofia), by S. Kozarov (from Stara Zagora, Kyustendil, Kostenets, Sofia and vicinities), by D. Vezhev (from Bourgas), by K. Seizov (from Provadia), by T. На базата на прегледания материал от 364 сфещидни екземпляра от сбирката на гимназиалния учител и ентомолог Никола Негелков са направени редица поправки върху публикациите му от 1909 и 1914 година и са представени данни от събиран от този автор материал, които не са били публикувани досега. Съобщените от Негелков 108 вида са сведени до 107 вида от 45 рода.
